Dr. Jackie Damrau Awarded Binion Amerson Leadership Award

Dallas, Texas — November 20, 2006 —The Lone Star Community (LSC) of the Society for Technical Communication (STC) honored Dr. Jackie Damrau with its inaugural Binion Amerson Leadership Award during the November monthly meeting.

The Binion Amerson Leadership Award recognizes an LSC member for having the qualities that distinguished Binion Amerson, a man who, through sustained contributions to leadership over a period of years, has displayed undaunted enthusiasm, striven for challenging goals, and inspired others to participate and excel in the field of technical communication.

Dr. Damrau, who has shown the same enthusiasm for the field and LSC as Mr. Amerson, was recognized for "consistently exemplifying the highest standards of leadership, service, and dedication to the Lone Star Community, the Society, and the Technical Communication profession."

"We received many nominations for worthy individuals," said Binion Amerson Leadership Award Committee chair, Louellen S. Coker. "Dr. Damrau, who has served in the majority of the community's leadership positions and is a continuous advocate for the field, was a natural choice for this distinction."

Dr. Damrau works as a technical communicator for T-Mobile USA in its Broadband Services-Enterprise Architecture group, and is long-time member and past president of the LSC.
